Hidden Valley Elementary Becomes International Peace Site

The day before Christmas Eve, Hidden Valley Elementary School in Savage, MN, became an International Peace Site. The school combined it with its Annual Holiday Sing-Along, which consisted of a wide variety of songs from around the world. These songs reflected the student body, families and community members present for this wonderful, annual community building activity.

The Principal of Hidden Valley Elementary School, Jon Bonneville, unveiled a Peace Pole which was purchased by a parent, Holly Circle Steffen, in honor of her parents. Martha Roberts, World Citizen President, shared World Citizen’s Five Peace Actions and noted the many examples present at Hidden Valley that already support peace. With an invitation to the staff and community members to check out peace education opportunities on World Citizen’s website, Hidden Valley was officially declared an International Peace Site on behalf of World Citizen and its board members.

Holly Circle and her husband Jimmy Steffen, both professional musicians, shared a wonderful variety of peace songs just before the dedication.

Congratulations, Hidden Valley Elementary!

Congratulations to the following International Peace Sites for their commitment to educating for a just and peaceful world!

Peace Education Workshops Bring Educators Together with Discussions of School Success

We were privileged once again to have Erin Walsh of “Mind Positive Parenting” as our guest presenter at our Peace Education Workshop on Jan. 27, 2015. Her topic was “Nurturing Caring, Resilient Youth in a Digital Age”. At this workshop, Erin continued to build from the October session by focusing on practical strategies for helping children and youth develop the skills they need to be successful both online and offline. Using stories, science, and humor, Erin focused on strategies to bridge the classroom, the family, and the community. Her presentation included setting limits and saying “no,” emotion coaching and self-regulation, conflict resolution, growth mindset and real self-esteem, and working with adolescents.

Participants at this workshop learned that self-discipline is twice as strong a predictor of school success as intelligence. Yet powerful cultural messages that scream, “More, Fast, Easy, and Fun” are making it difficult for children to develop this critical character trait. Erin explained with facts and statistics from brain science research that fostering self-discipline and regaining the ability to set loving limits are important for our kids’ health and happiness. She stressed the core ingredients for character and resilience in our digital world that should not be overlooked are connections, boundaries, and participation.

“Connection is the foundation of executive function,” Erin stated. A strategy for connecting is using the approach of “Four at the door; name, head, heart, and hand.” (Knowing a person’s name, recognizing them, knowing something about them, and extending an inviting touch or handshake.)

Erin’s message was well received, as more than 52 percent of the participants specifically made note of the importance of making connections in their feedback to the day. Just a few examples of what they had to say:

“Good reminders on how to build connections, set boundaries.”

“Plans and real ideas about making/enhancing connections.”

“Remembering that connectedness and social development is not just another part of what a child learns, it is the foundational piece.”

We were also proud to introduce Lynn Elling to this group of participants. Lynn spoke briefly about how and why he founded World Citizen in 1972. He explained to the participants that his idea was to dedicate Peace Sites, and that a Peace Site needs to make a commitment to work on peace within itself, with others at home and throughout the world, and with the natural world. There should be a commitment to learn about nonviolent conflict resolution as well as learning about and showing respect to all the world’s cultures. Lynn said. Many of the participants mentioned their appreciation for hearing from Lynn:

“Great to have Lynn join us.”

“I enjoyed hearing from Lynn—he’s inspiring and thoughtful.”

“Loved listening to Lynn.”

These were just a few among many comments from Peace Education participants. When asked, “What learning will you take away from today that will impact your work with family/community/students?,” one Peace Educator said:

“My notes are many. I have a To Do list for my school, one for myself, as well as one for home and family!”

Remember that YOU are invited to attend any and all of our workshops! These workshops are of no cost to our participants, and are made possible because of funders (like you) who are dedicated to our Five Peace Actions. As we work to grow our program of Peace Education (both online and onsite) and provide professional speakers such as Erin Walsh of “Mind Positive Parenting,” we invite you to share information about World Citizen and our programs with businesses, schools, communities, and family.

This past year, World Citizen designed Peace Education Scholarships to be purchased by organizations and individuals. Newly Designed Peace Site Plaque Ready for Purchase; Highlights the Five Peace Actions

This past year the World Citizen marketing committee has focused on making our mission and the Five Peace Actions visible in all of the work we do; therefore, it seemed like the right time to re-design the Peace Site plaques.

The new design includes the Five Peace Actions, which are the very core of World Citizen’s work. The practice of the Peace Actions is what it means to be a World Citizen International Peace Site.

The new plaques cost $55. Plaque overlays are also available, and can be added to current plaques for $25. These are available for purchase by sending a check to World Citizen. Please include your name, Peace Site name, contact information, and address. Shipping is free. If your organization or home would like to update your plaque, please call us at 651-695-2587 or visit our website at www.peacesites.org for more information.

The design and production was done by Winning Edge, Inc. in Maple Plain, Minn. Bart G. Cuderman, President & CEO, has provided World Citizen with in-kind assistance.

An Excerpt from Daily Advice From the Heart
By the Dalai Lama

“Peace in the world depends on peace of mind, and peace of mind depends on an awareness that all human beings are members of a single family, despite the variety of beliefs, ideologies, and political and economic systems. These are mere details compared to what brings us together. The most important thing is that we are all human beings living on the same planet. We all need to cooperate with each other, both individually and between states, if only to ensure our survival.”

World Citizen’s Five Peace Actions
